How the Pieces Connect — The Relationship Layer

- Leadership controls committees. The Speaker and majority party set committee ratios and ratify chairs through the Steering Committee, so floor leadership effectively directs where bills live and die.
- Officers serve the chamber, not a party. The Clerk, Sergeant at Arms, and CAO are elected by the majority but run the institution's machinery for all members.
- ⇌ Support agencies are non-partisan. CRS, CBO, GAO, and JCT serve both chambers and every member
- Caucuses pressure leadership. Blocs like the Freedom Caucus or Progressive Caucus withhold votes to extract concessions — informal groups bending the formal whip count.
- Committees feed the floor. The Rules Committee — the Speaker's instrument — decides how (and whether) committee-reported bills reach a vote.
- ⇌ Both chambers must agree. House and Senate pass identical text (often via conference) before a bill goes to equally — the analytical backbone behind committee work.

the President — the bicameral check.

→ Campaign arms renew the body. NRCC and DCCC recruit and fund candidates, determining who fills the seats — and thus which party holds every lever above.
